THE OLD POST OFFICE, MICHELDEVER

A wonderfully modernised, characterful Grade II Listed village house in the charming, highly sought-after village of Micheldever.

Micheldever village believed to be of early mediaeval origins with a range of quaint and attractive streets lined with traditional village houses, both large and small. An interesting historical note is that the first private car journey in the UK, in 1895, is believed to have originated in this area. The village is an active and social community and enjoys a Village Shop, Public House, Village Hall, Church and other facilities. The Old Post Office is located within the Micheldever Conservation Area.

The Old Post Office is a substantial family home with history dating from the late Tudor times in 16th century across into the late 1700s. It was created from three village houses, and packed with original features, such as carved beams and Inglenook fireplaces, yet remains a practical home for comfortable modern family living, with flexible accommodation spaces both upstairs and downstairs.

Parts of the property are believed to be among the oldest in the village and given the height of the ceilings at the front of the house, may have been an old Hall and is likely constructed over an even older structure. Various Saxon finds and structures have been found by archaeologists in the immediate area.

The main entrance is found to the side of the main house, via a short path, and opens onto the principal reception hall with fireplace containing a wood-burning stove and original clay paved flooring. Most of the main reception rooms can be reached from here. To the right is a snug family room which in turn opens on the kitchen.

The spacious kitchen/breakfast room is clearly the hub of the home and is flooded with light courtesy of large walls of windows overlooking the garden. It benefits from a wealth of cream coloured shaker style cabinetry, with space and plumbing for a dishwasher, and features an oil-fired Aga with two ovens and two hot plates. From here, the gardens may be accessed via French windows or separate doorway under a pretty porch. A separate utility room provides useful space for both laundry and further storage.

RECEPTION ROOMS: Further reception rooms include the formal drawing room with exposed beams and a wonderful inglenook fireplace featuring an original bread oven; a sitting room with woodburning stove, and a small study and music room. In addition, the current owners have added a useful contemporary garden office, with power, light and electric heating.

BEDROOMS: Upstairs there are four double bedrooms, two of which benefit from ensuite shower room. There is an additional contemporary family bathroom downstairs with a freestanding roll top bath and separate walk in shower. Unusually for many thatched cottages the Old Post Office has good head heights upstairs, and each room can be accessed without the need to pass through an adjoining bedroom.
