96 FAIRFIELD ROAD WINCHESTER, SO22 6SG

A four-bedroom Victorian semi-detached home on one of Fulflood's most desirable roads, within easy walking distance of Winchester railway station, well-regarded schools, local shops and restaurants, and the city centre.

This attractive house retains much of its original character, with high ceilings, picture rails, decorative plaster corbels in the entrance hall, and wood flooring.

Cast iron radiators and newly installed double-glazed sash windows (2025) add to the overall feel of quality and comfort.

The ground floor offers well-proportioned and practical living space.

The dining room, with its bay window, is a particularly bright room, featuring a working fireplace with wood surround and fitted shelving to the alcoves.

To the rear, the sitting room is a comfortable space centred around a recently installed log-burning stove, with views over the garden.

The kitchen is arranged across a split level and finished with polished black granite work surfaces and walnut-style base units with open shelving above. There is space for a range cooker and fridge, an integrated dishwasher, and a useful utility cupboard. With room for both a breakfast table and a sofa, it's a sociable space, and double French doors open directly onto the garden.

A cloakroom, understairs storage and further cupboards complete the ground floor.

The second floor provides a generous principal bedroom with a dormer window to the rear, Velux windows to the front, built-in storage and eaves space, along with an en-suite shower room.

AND SO TO BED: Upstairs, the first floor includes a family bathroom with natural light and a bath with shower over, a single bedroom currently used as an office, and two double bedrooms. Both doubles retain period features including fireplaces, while the front room also enjoys a bay window and open south-facing views across Winchester.
